LASH LARUE

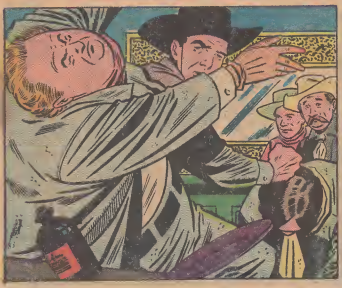
THE LAST AMBUSH

NEVER, IN HIS LONG CAREER AS A LAWMAN, HAD LASH LARUE BEEN UP AGAINST A MAN LIKE PETER GAANT/ GAANT NEVER CARRIED A GUN OR WEAPON OF ANY KIND ... BUT HE BECKONED KILLERS FROM THE FOUR CORNERS OF THE EARTH TO THROW AT THE MARSHAL HE KNEW WAS OUT TO JAIL HIM ... GAANT, THE SPIDER-LIKE BUILDER OF A WEB ACROSS WHICH CRIMINAL ALIENS POURED OVER OUR FRONTIERS HAD VOWED TO GET LASH LARUE ... NO MATTER WHO HE RUINED DOING IT/

Fill. 6606



HOW LONG YUH GONNA LET GAANT TRY FOR YUH, LASH? GO AFTER HIM FOR A CHANGE/
WHY? HE SAVES ME WORK, SENDING THESE ILLEGAL A-LIENS AFTER ME/ I JUG 'EM, THEN SHIP THEM TO THE PROP-ER AUTHORITIES LAT-ER/
GAANT BRINGS FOREIGN CRIMINALS HERE FOR A BIG PRICE/ THE LAW-ABIDING IMMIGRANTS ARE VICTIMIZED BY THEIR OWN COUNTRYMEN WHO SWIN-DLE, BLACKMAIL, AND EXTORT MONEY FROM THEM/
THE LITTLE CROSSROADS COMMUNITY HAD A JAIL. LASH LARUE'S TWO LATEST PRISONERS FILLED IT TO CAPACITY/
GAANT WILL DEFEAT YOU SOON, LARUE/ AND WE WILL GO FREE/
HE'LL LAND IN A CELL LIKE THE REST OF YUH/ AND STAY LONG-ER/
I'VE BEEN LUCKY SO FAR/ IF I DON'T GET EVIDENCE AGAINST PETER GAANT SOON, HE'LL GET ME/

THE GHOST OF CHIEF DEERFOOT

Ordinarily I would have closed up the office at five and gone home for rest. Then supper at Luigi's and a night with the fellows at the new bowling alley on Main Street. However at four ten I had received a call from Police Chief Garetson.

"Stay put in your office. Sheriff Blakely is coming in to see you. Important."

So I told my secretary to go home and I just started to read some of the travel folders an agency had sent to me. I planned to take a cruise to South America next month. Business was good because in my field there really isn't any competition. As far as I know I am the only Ghost Getter in the field.

Actually I started out ten years ago as a private investigator. Then came a big case concerning a fake ghost that put me in the headlines. A couple of appearances on TV shows and a big article about myself did the rest. If you think you have a ghost then I am your man. But let me make one point clear. I don't believe in ghosts. Never mind what some of these experts tell you about the shadowy figures from the Great Beyond.

At five thirty there was a knock on the door and I told the visitors on the other side of the door to come in. He certainly was a big fellow and wore one of those ten gallons hats. He stretched out his hand and shook mine. Believe me he had some grip.

"Name is Sheriff Jim Blakely of Honaggardo County. Police Chief Garetson told me about your work. You are my man. There's a ghost that is scaring the daylights out of the plain folks in my territory. They have lived in that valley for a long time, Mrs. Elliot. And no outsiders are liked there. Years ago it was Indian ground and held by a redskin called Chief Deerfoot. There was a bloody fight and when it was the Indians were out and the white men were in.

There's an old legend that says the Chief swore a revenge. He would come back from the happy hunting grounds. And get even with the descendents of those that defeated him and his tribe. Now for some reason that legend got started again. Can't find out who is responsible. maybe that's not important. What counts is the fact that at night this Indian has been seen riding a white horse. And he shoots arrows at people. They shoot back with their rifles and pistols. But he has a charmed life. He just vanishes."

"You saw him yourself?" I asked.

"Twice," was the reply. "So I know there is something behind it. Scaring the folks in the valley. Two of the families left already. Another wants to sell."

"Then this is simple," I grinned. "Somebody is trying to get the people out and buy their property. Just tell me who is in the market for it and we get our man."

"I sort of figured that one out myself," replied Sheriff Blakely. "Only trouble is that nobody has been trying to buy the land. Or even wants it. Go figure how this makes sense?"

I told him my fee and that I went by a station wagon that carrid all my equipment. We would be ready to leave in the morning and that got an o.k. from him. We left at sunup the next day and it was two days of driving. He had come in his car. He made out a little rough map for me just in case I got lost. But I followed him and finally came to the town of Cross Forks which was where the sheriff's office for Honagardo County was. He put me up at his place.

I wanted to get the lay of the land so he took me around and I met some of the folks. I noticed quite a few were carrying six shooters.

"I thought this was forbidden?" I told the sheriff.

"I issued pistol permits," he explained. "Looks sort of cloudy for tonight. You ride a horse? If so we take horses and go to where the ghost of that Indian Chief has been seen."

I should tell him that I had even ridden a camel out in the deserts of Arabia? I sat in the saddle and the two of us rode out of town about seven o'clock. We came to a spot where we could see below us a dozen homes. And then I saw it! He must have forgotten to tell me that this Indian Chief was about five times the size of any normal man. We were joined by three men from the valley below. One, Jed Coopers spoke.

"We aren't crazy, sheriff. Watching what happens when I fire a bullet at the chief."

He took his rifle from the side of his saddle and aimed at the figured. He pulled the trigger. There was the noise of the bullet. Then an arrow flew through the air and just missed him.

"That was close," I managed to say.

"If this keeps up, we just got to move," said Jed Coopers. "My kids are scared to death. The missus won't let them out of the house once it gets dark. I figure maybe the time has come to move anyway. This land is about played out. I got some money saved. Going to head towards the coast."

I wasn't paying too much attention to what he said. I was looking for the arrow that missed him. Finally I saw it on the ground. Got off my horse and picked it up.

"What are you going to do with that arrow?" demanded Jed Coopers.

"Keep it as a souvenir. Not often the ghost of an Indian Chief is around to shoot arrows. Maybe this is valuable. Who knows?"

The sheriff rode by my side back to town.I didn't say a word. Even when we dismounted at his office.

"Something sort of going on in your head?" he asked.

"Sort of," I replied.

I was tired and fell asleep in the cot he had set up for me. Ate a hearty breakfast the next morning. Then went inside my station wagon and did some work. An hour later I was ready for the sheriff. I went into his office and pulling down the shades. I set up a projector on a table and showed him some slides.

"Why that's the Indian Chief we saw last night!" he exclaimed. "I never saw you with a camera."

From my shirt pocket I took out a camera that could be concealed in the palm of my hand and showed it to him.

"I held the reins of my horse with my left hand and took the pictures with the other hand. Then I enlarged them after developing them for this special projector. I am going to show you the third slide again. Which I did.

"In this picture you can see three of the teeth of the Indian Chief. One has a gold crown on it. Tell me, did Chief Deerfoot have a gold crown? Did he go visit a dentist?"

The sheriff couldn't help laughing. Then his face became serious. I knew what he was going to say.

"Jed Coopers is the only one around here with such a gold crown. And I got a feeling that he is the fellow in the picture. But still I can't figure it out."

Next I handed him the arrow and he examined it. It was an old Indian arrow and authentic.

"What Indians were around here?" I wanted to know.

"Comanches," replied the sheriff.

"So I got news for you," I told him. "This is a hunting arrow that was used by the Sioux. A Comanche would use a Comanche war arrow. Now let's go out there. I want to look around."

We drove out in my station wagon and I did some calculations. I figured we had seen the picture of the Old Indian Chief against a rather smooth part of the side of the mountain wall. But where was the projector? I walked a short distance to where there was a stone and saw the hole in it. Together the sheriff and myself did some digging. We came up with a bit of modern high priced equipment.

"This projector is powered by a battery pack. And there is a timer that sets it in motion. It uses a special wide angle lens. There's a wire and I bet it is connected to something that can shoot out arrows. Our original guess still holds. Somebody wants to scare away the folks. Then get all the land."

"But how?" demanded the sheriff.

"Buy it cheap at a tax sale," I replied. "Now we go visit Jed Coopers."

He refused to talk. The sheriff said he would arrest him.

"On what ground?" demanded Jed. "I got a right to get a lawyer. And you can hold me on is the ground that I created a nuisance."

"And attempted murder," I added. "Suppose that arrow got me? Maybe you fixed up the spring so the arrow couldn't do really any damage. But out here if they convict you on a charge of attempted murder you should get five to ten."

He talked and we could hardly believe it. There was a fortune in radio-active stuff in the valley. His brother back east had put up the money for all this. They were going to make millions. I collected my fee and left two days later. With a lot of thanks from the sheriff and the good folks down there.
